

FUN AND EDUCATION COMBINED, AT CARY INSTITUTE SUMMER ECOLOGY CAMP

Registration is open for Ecology Day Camp at the Cary Institute. Seven weeklong and two three-day sessions are being offered this year, beginning in late June and running through August. This year's theme is Aliens in Our Midst: Investigating Invasive Species.

Ecology Camp gives children entering grades two through seven a unique opportunity to experience ecological science with our ecology educators and research scientists. They conduct outdoor investigations and participate in related crafts and games. Older kids can apply to be Youth Eco-Leaders and assist in camp instruction and data collection.

For more information, contact Megan McLean at (845) 677-7600 x 190 or email mcleanm@caryinstitute.org. A limited number of scholarships are available based on demonstrated need. You can also download a registration form at www.caryinstitute.org/ed_eco_camps.html.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

CHUBB FUNDING

The Chubb Group of Insurance Companies has donated $1000 to the Cary Institute to support scholarships enabling four or five qualified youngsters to attend Ecology Day Camp this summer.
